

YOU TAKE THE CAKE

A: All right. Who stole the last piece of cake?

B: It wasn't me. I swear.

C: [to B] You have crumbs on the front of your shirt.

D: That doesn't mean they're guilty. Everyone is innocent until proven guilty.

E: Maybe they ate some cake yesterday and are wearing the same shirt two days in a row.

F: People shouldn't wear the same shirt two days in a row.

A: I know it was one of you. No one else has been in here since yesterday.

B: The window is unlocked. Someone could have come in the window, stolen the cake and then crawled back out the window.

C: [to B] Isn't that icing on your chin? It's the same kind of icing that was on the cake.

D: It could be from a chocolate bar. It might not be icing at all.

E: Maybe it's from the cake they ate yesterday and they just didn't wash their face last night.

F: Didn't wash their face! That's unsanitary!

A: I think you should just confess. And buy me another cake.

B: Confess? But you don't know for sure that I'm guilty!

C: [to B] There's an empty plate with chocolate icing on it sitting at your desk.

D: They could have just set their chocolate bar down on the plate to keep it from getting on their papers.

E: Or the plate could be from last week and they just haven't washed it yet.

F: Unlaundered shirts, dirty face, unwashed dishes- you're a slob!

A: All I want is my cake. I was saving that piece for my dessert.

B: I wish I could give you your cake, but I don't have it.

C: [to B] Obviously you don't have it- you ATE it!

D: Don't you watch CSI? If you don't have the BODY, you can't prove someone's guilty.

E: And just because the body is DIRTY doesn't prove it either.

F: Oh, I think there's plenty of proof- they're FILTHY! I'm going to go eat my dessert in the hall. You stink.
